MY LIFE AS A MOM

Nine months after baby Harlow's arrival, Nicole and Joel talk about loving parenthood. 'I can't imagine life without her,' says

● Struck by the weathered beauty of the locals near his Michigan summer cabin, photographer Paul Mobley set out to photograph farmers from Maine to Alaska. "You ask yourself, Where have all the good people gone?" he writes. "Well, I can tell you. Drive up to any farmhouse in this country. You'll find them. They're there."

Alice Wiemers and her husband keep bees at their grain-and-livestock farm in Hondo, Texas.
